Agree the result before work starts

We confirm the deliverable, responsibilities and billing basis in writing. Scope changes are priced before they are made, and you decide whether to proceed. The terms set out payment, ownership and the limits of liability.

Work directly with the responsible engineer

Ditte Daryna Sh founded the company after two decades in platforms, data and infrastructure. The people named in your engagement do the work. If a specialist is brought in, you are told who and why, and Engineer ApS remains responsible for delivery. These commitments are in our ethics.

Everything above can be checked before you spend anything — including the price.

A consultancy that only sounds good at the pitch has to keep the evidence out of reach.

Inspect the relevant experience

The portfolio describes the situation, contribution and result; cases provide a shorter introduction. The record distinguishes company work from the founder's earlier work and employment. Recommendations and reference requests give a separate route to other people's experience; an introduction depends on consent.

Understand the price and the handover

The price basis includes the longer-booking discounts. Your quotation confirms the scope and cost. On full payment, work built specifically for you transfers to you under the terms, with the stated exceptions for existing tools and third-party components.

Delivered defects are fixed at our cost for 90 days after delivery. Ongoing work can end on 30 days' written notice. The service levels cover documentation and handover of code, access, credentials and current status. Operating hours, incident response and availability are agreed per system.

Examine how we work

The site's credits, accessibility statement and security description document its engineering choices and verification limits. They are a worked example, alongside the delivery record. Company details identify your contracting party.
